Council tables ordinances to special meeting

Budget notice to taxpayers, elected compensation, salaries delayed

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Knowing that a special meeting has been called for next Wednesday, Madison City Council on Tuesday tabled three ordinances dealing with the city's 2023 budget, compensation for elected officials and salaries for appointed officers and employees.

The delay is to allow time for a more complete picture of the city's projected revenues for next year and to determine how difficult it would be to change budget numbers at a later date.

The decision to delay the second reading of the three ordinances, which are required by law annually, was by unanimous vote after the city's financial adviser, Matt Trimnell, of Reedy Financial Group, told the council he could not provide a clearer picture of the city's finances at this time. He said the proposed budget for notice to taxpayers was a conservative estimate in terms of what the city should receive in revenue and most city's operate under similar estimates.

As presented on Tuesday, the notice to taxpapers listed an estimated civil tax levy of $8,308,236 and a property tax cap credit estimate of $1,679,800 but those numbers won't be firm until assessments are in and the revenue is calculated. The city's proposed budget is $14,165,605.

"We try to err a little on the conservative side," said Trimnell, later noting that by the time the budget is actually adopted, the numbers that are now

Hoosier guitarist Kade Puckett, who drew a nice gathering when he performed during Madison's 2021 Soup, Stew, Chili and Brew that drew thousands to Main Street, will be back this year along with eight other musicians performing on three stages plus all the tasty soup, stew, chili and brew at the 20th anniversary festival on Saturday. The event will include more music this year including a main stage on Broadway that will feature music until 6:30 p.m. with the Woomblies serving as the final headline act of the festival.

Annual Soup Stew Chili Brew to feature more music

20th anniversary of popular festival is Saturday

BY BOB DEMAREE

Richard Ice on Saturday will oversee his first Soup Stew Chili Brew Festival since taking over as the Madison Area Chamber of Commerce executive director in April but he's well familiar with the popular event.

"I have been to most of them. Years ago I volunteered at them. That was my first introduction to the Chamber volunteering at Soup Stew Chili Brew," he said, recalling volunteering the year the footprint of the event expanded past West Street all the way to Broadway.

This year brings another change to Soup Stew Chili Brew with the main entertainment stage — traditionally set up in front of Madison City Hall — moving west to Broadway where the headliner band, the Woomblies, will perform from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. to close out the event.

Meanwhile, the Soup Stew Chili Brew festival, sponsored again by Ivy Tech, runs from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Main Street between Jefferson and Broadway where other music as well as food, drink and games will be located.

Ice said the concert provides an activity to wrap up the day's festivities while serving as a transition for visitors to Madison's other activities on Saturday night. Food will stop being served at 5 p.m., allowing the cleanup to begin on Main Street while visitors enjoy the Woomblies, a four-piece rock band from Indianapolis, on Broadway away from the Main Street cleanup.

Although soup, stew, chili and brew remains the focus — the star — of the festival, Ice said with the strong music scene in Madison "it's turning a little more into a music event," particularly with the Madison Music Movement serving as entertainment sponsor.

Hanover Parks receives $574,412 grant

BY BOB DEMAREE

Hanover Parks Department received official notification last week that it has been awarded a $574,412 Land and Water Conservation Fund grant for improvements to Hanover Community Park.

The announcement was made by Parks Committee Chairman Don Server at Tuesday's meeting of the Hanover Parks Board.

The process for acquiring the grant began nearly two years ago when the town council and park committee developed a five-year plan for the park. Since this spring they have been waiting with anticipation of an announcement the funding would be approved

"I want to thank the (park) committee that helped put this all together who have been working on it the past year," said Server. "We expected to hear something in the March/April time frame" but it took longer than that. "We heard it was looking good" and was 95% certain but not definite until officially approved. So, over the last few months "we sat on the edge of our seat" in anticipation.

Parks Director Scott Davidson commended Server for preparing all the paperwork and leading the effort seeking the grant, which was administered by the Indiana Department of

Columbus band builds fan base in Madison

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

Regular readers of this column know that I generally stick to profiles of local Madisonians, be they musicians or venue owners or festival organizers. But occasionally, when I start to see a band or musician playing consistently in our town, even if they are from elsewhere, I want to know more about them and get their outside perspective on our unique music town.

People like Tracy Thompson out of North Vernon, Indiana; Gary Applegate out of Seymour, Indiana, and Snaps for Sinners out of California play in Madison with such regularity that they have become part of the musical fabric of Indiana's Music City. Such is the case with a band called The Faze from Columbus, Indiana.

I caught up with Faze lead singer Mark Taylor by phone a couple weeks ago and asked him how he and his band came to be such a fixture here in Madison. "Well, I know a guy in Madison named David Taylor, who is no relation to me by the way, and he introduced me to some people down here. We played at the Legion a few times, and that led to gigs at Rivertown Grill and at The Central.

On June 15, 1989, he was united in marriage at the Pisgah United Methodist Church in Deputy, Indiana to Diane Cheryl Lanz. He was employed at Freudenberg-NOK in Scottsburg, Indiana for 20 years where he took great pride in his AIM Department. He cut a huge Christmas tree each year for his employees to decorate and would buy a bicycle for one lucky child each year that the company donated to the United Way. He became interested in 12 gauge still board competition (turkey shoots) over 40 years ago and frequently shot at the Coonhunters Conservation Club in New Albany. He eventually turned this hobby into a business known as GBG, the Gun Barrel Guy in Deputy, Indiana for over 20 years until he was physically unable to continue. He built and shipped custom barrels all over the country and traveled extensively to compete in countless matches through the years. His shooting friends and family were a huge part of his life and he stayed involved by phone with them to the end of his battle. His little dog Guss was his co-worker and a constant companion since 2012 and was a great comfort to Howard in his last days. He raced stock cars when he was younger and rebuilt his engine each week with the help of his Blocher friends and followed Nascar closely, rarely missing watching a race. Howard had an incredible knowledge of the outdoors and wildlife. His other interests included hunting, fishing, boating, mowing, car racing, gardening and mushroom hunting. He took pride in his nine acre farm and spent a lot of time gardening with his '58 Ford tractor. He loved talking about gardening with his friend and neighbor, Donald Baxter, who visited regularly on his golf cart before passing in January of 2022. Howard stood at the end of his drive to salute his fellow veteran's funeral procession as it passed on its way to the Pisgah Cemetery. Howard passed away on September 25, 2022 in his home in Deputy, Indiana surrounded by his loved ones.

TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On Oct. 6, 1973, war erupted in the Middle East as Egypt and Syria launched a surprise attack on Israel during the Yom Kippur holiday. (Israel, initially caught off guard, managed to push back the Arab forces before a cease-fire finally took hold in the nearly three-week conflict.)

ON THIS DATE:

In 1536, English theologian and scholar William Tyndale, who was the first to translate the Bible into Early Modern English, was executed for heresy.

In 1927, the era of talking pictures arrived with the opening of "The Jazz Singer" starring Al Jolson, a feature containing both silent and sound-synchronized sequences.

In 1928, Chiang Kai-shek became president of China.

In 1939, in a speech to the Reichstag, German Chancellor Adolf Hitler spoke of his plans to reorder the ethnic layout of Europe — a plan that would entail settling the "Jewish problem."

In 1976, President Gerald R. Ford, in his second presidential debate with Democrat Jimmy Carter, asserted that there was "no Soviet domination of eastern Europe." (Ford later conceded such was not the case.)

In 1979, Pope John Paul II, on a week-long U.S. tour, became the first pontiff to visit the White House, where he was received by President Jimmy Carter.

In 1981, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was shot to death by extremists while reviewing a military parade.

In 2003, American Paul Lauterbur and Briton Peter Mansfield won the Nobel Prize for medicine for discoveries that led to magnetic resonance imaging.

In 2010, social networking app Instagram was launched by Kevin Systrom and Mike Krieger.

In 2014, the Supreme Court unexpectedly cleared the way for a dramatic expansion of gay marriage in the United States as it rejected appeals from five states seeking to preserve their bans, effectively making such marriages legal in 30 states.

In 2018, in the narrowest Senate confirmation of a Supreme Court justice in nearly a century and a half, Brett Kavanaugh was confirmed by a 50-48 vote; he was sworn in hours later.

In 2020, President Donald Trump, recovering from COVID-19, tweeted his eagerness to return to the campaign trail and said he still planned to attend an upcoming debate with Democrat Joe Biden in Miami; Biden said there should be no debate as long as Trump remained COVID positive. (The debate would be canceled.)

Ten years ago: Five terror suspects, including Egyptian-born preacher Mustafa Kamel Mustafa, widely known as Abu Hamza al-Masri, arrived in the United States from England and appeared in court in New York and Connecticut. (Mustafa was convicted in 2014 of supporting terrorist organizations.)

Five years ago: The board of directors of The Weinstein Co. said movie mogul Harvey Weinstein was on indefinite leave from the company he founded amid an internal investigation into sexual harassment allegations against him. The International Campaign to Abolish Nuclear Weapons, a grassroots effort aimed at pressuring the world's nuclear powers to give up those weapons, won the Nobel Peace Prize.

One year ago: A federal judge ordered Texas to suspend a new law that had banned most abortions in the state since September. (An appeals court would reinstate the law two days later.) The Los Angeles City Council voted to enact one of the nation's strictest vaccine mandates; it required the shots for everyone entering bars, restaurants, nail salons, gyms and even a Lakers game. The World Health Organization endorsed the world's first malaria vaccine and said it should be given to children across Africa in the hope that it would spur stalled efforts to curb the spread of the parasitic disease; the vaccine was developed by GlaxoSmithKline in 1987.

Today's Birthdays: Broadcaster and writer Melvyn Bragg is 83. Actor Britt Ekland is 80. The former leader of Sinn Fein (shin fayn), Gerry Adams, is 74. Singer-musician Thomas McClary is 73. TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On Oct. 7, 1991, University of Oklahoma law professor Anita Hill publicly accused Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas of making sexually inappropriate comments when she worked for him; Thomas denied Hill's allegations and would go on to win Senate confirmation.

ON THIS DATE:

In 1765, the Stamp Act Congress convened in New York to draw up colonial grievances against England.

In 1916, in the most lopsided victory in college football history, Georgia Tech defeated Cumberland University 222-0 in Atlanta.

In 1949, the Republic of East Germany was formed.

In 1982, the Andrew Lloyd Webber-Tim Rice musical "Cats" opened on Broadway. (The show closed Sept. 10, 2000, after a record 7,485 performances.)

In 1985, Palestinian gunmen hijacked the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro in the Mediterranean. (The hijackers shot and killed Leon Klinghoffer, a Jewish-American tourist in a wheelchair, and pushed him overboard, before surrendering on Oct. 9.)

In 1989, Hungary's Communist Party renounced Marxism in favor of democratic socialism during a party congress in Budapest.

In 1992, trade representatives of the United States, Canada and Mexico initialed the North American Free Trade Agreement during a ceremony in San Antonio, Texas, in the presence of President George H.W. Bush, Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney (muhl-ROO'-nee) and Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari.

In 1996, Fox News Channel made its debut.

In 1998, Matthew Shepard, a gay college student, was beaten and left tied to a wooden fencepost outside of Laramie, Wyoming; he died five days later. (Russell Henderson and Aaron McKinney are serving life sentences for Shepard's murder.)

In 2001, the war in Afghanistan started as the United States and Britain launched air attacks against military targets and Osama bin Laden's training camps in the wake of the September 11 attacks.

In 2003, California voters recalled Gov. Gray Davis and elected Arnold Schwarzenegger their new governor.

In 2020, President Donald Trump returned to the Oval Office for the first time since he was diagnosed with COVID-19; he credited an experimental drug treatment with helping his recovery. Debating from behind plexiglass shields, Vice President Mike Pence and Democrat Kamala Harris zeroed in on Trump's handling of the coronavirus pandemic, with Harris labeling it "the greatest failure of any presidential administration" while Pence defended the overall response.

Ten years ago: Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez won re-election for the third time. (Chavez died in March 2013 at age 58 after a two-year battle with cancer; he was succeeded by Vice President Nicolas Maduro.)

Five years ago: Country music star Jason Aldean, who had been on stage at an outdoor concert in Las Vegas less than a week earlier when a gunman opened fire on the crowd, paid tribute to the victims and to the late Tom Petty by opening "Saturday Night Live" with Petty's song, "I Won't Back Down." Protesters rallied across Russia in a challenge to President Vladimir Putin on his 65th birthday; heeding calls from opposition leader Alexei Navalny to pressure authorities into letting him enter the presidential race.

One year ago: Abortions quickly resumed in at least six Texas clinics after a federal judge halted the most restrictive abortion law in the nation. (A federal appeals court would allow the law to go back into effect the following day.) The Senate dodged a U.S. debt disaster, voting to extend the government's borrowing authority into December and temporarily avert an unprecedented federal default. (The House would approve the extension days later.) Google said it would crack down on digital ads promoting false claims about climate change, in hopes of limiting revenue for climate change deniers and stopping the spread of misinformation.

Retired nurses form Nursing Honor Guard chapter

BY BOB DEMAREE

A Southeast Indiana chapter of the Nursing Honor Guard has been established to recognize deceased nurses who have dedicated their lives to the nursing profession.

"Our small group has been meeting for months and this dream is becoming a reality," said Lisa Morgan, who has joined with three other retired nurses to form the local nursing honor guard. Nursing Honor Guard members are volunteer nurses who consider it a privilege to participate in final celebrations of life involving their fellow nurses at their funerals.

Morgan said initially the honor guard will serve Jefferson, Jennings, Ripley, Scott and Switzerland counties but she anticipates expanding into other counties in the area.

The impetus locally for a Nursing Honor Guard took place in 2019 when at the funeral of fellow nurse they felt compelled to honor that person. When they became aware that honor guards for just that purpose existed they knew that they wanted to form one locally as a way to provide a noble means to do that.

Being able to honor their fellow nurses is something Morgan considers a privilege and it provides an opportunity for them to serve even now that they are retired. "We want to deliver a first class service for nurses and their families," Morgan said, because it is deserved for the sacrifice and devotion to helping others during their career as nurses.

Bob Demaree

A Southeast Indiana chapter of the Nursing Honor Guard has been formed locally with four retired nurses from King's Daughters' Health including (from left) Lisa Morgan, Margie Combs, Nick James and Colleen Keith.

The Southeast Indiana chapter of the Nurse Honor Guard currently consists of four retired nurses from King's Daughters' Health — all ending their active careers prior to the change of ownership to Norton Healthcare system. Morgan said together the four have more than 100 years of nursing experience. The group includes Morgan, Margie Combs, Colleen Keith and Nick James.

The group recently underwent training by the St. Vincent Anderson Nursing Honor Guard, a chapter that was formed in 2014.

Jan Bronnenberg, coordinator of St. Vincent Anderson Nursing Honor Guard, got involved in forming the Nursing Honor Guard in Anderson because "I saw the opportunity that we needed it." She said honors are given to military, paramedics and Masonic members.

"We just knew we needed to do something for our deceased nurses," she said. "God has blessed this ministry beyond any measure. Yes, we volunteer our time but when I put on that white uniform and that hat I feel like a nurse again, and it's a good feeling. And the families are so appreciative to have their loved one honored in such a way. I am just thrilled they are getting one started here."

The Southeastern Indiana Nurses Honor Guard will conduct its first memorial service at 7 p.m. on Saturday at Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre in Madison for former surgery, pre-op and post-op RN Wanda Stewart, 68, of Madison, who died recently. Stewart retired from KDH after 36 years in nursing.

Any registered nurse (RN) and/or licensed practical nurses (LPN) interested in joining the honor guard should contact Morgan at lmmorgan224@gmail.com.

BAND

"These days it seems like we're down here a couple times a month, which suits us just fine. Madison is a great town to play. It seems like the people really follow you and show up for your shows once they get to know you. Madison folks get behind their favorite bands, more so than we see in other towns we play.

"Of course, we tailor our shows to what we think people want to hear. We are there to entertain and make sure people have a great time. You'll hear lots of classic rock like Prince and Stevie Wonder. We'll even pull out a Def Leppard sometimes. Basically, if the crowd will dance to it, we will play it!

"I had a bar owner once tell me his philosophy, that if you could play the right music and keep the girls dancing and having fun, the boys will stay too. That's a recipe for a great night if you are a club owner trying to sell beer."

I asked Mark specifically about playing at the Rivertown Grill, which has one of the more compact stages in Madison. If you haven't been there, you need to check it out. I think it's fair to say the average bathroom might have a little bit more square footage.

Mark assured me it doesn't even rank in the top five. "We played a regular gig for years at the Brown County Inn, and they have the smallest stage ever! Rivertown is downright roomy by comparison."

The Faze consists of Mark Taylor on lead vocals and rhythm guitar, his cousin Rich Ballard on bass and vocals, Terry Henderson on drums and Rob Barajas on lead guitar. "Rob came up from Mexico to Columbus probably 40 years ago, and he's one of the best guitarists I've ever played with.

"We take our role as professional musicians very seriously. Even though we've been together for many years and could probably get away without rehearsing, we still get together and practice very hard. When the music is tight and it sounds the way you remember it from back in the day, it makes a difference. It gets you up on your feet having a good time."

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

Probably the biggest news in music this weekend is the annual Soup, Stew, Chili & Brew Festival on Main Street from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. The event features three music stages with various acts performing all day. The VFW is popping back on the music calendar with some "open to the public" events. On Friday they are hosting an open mic night, and on Saturday they have the band Silver Wings. On Saturday evening out at the high school there's a show that I covered in depth last week, with a number of Madison Consolidated High School alumni performing. And if you've never been to Thomas Family Winery, this Saturday will be the night to give it a try. The evening will be cool and beautiful out on their lovely side patio, and the band Highland Reign will keep things lively and entertaining.

Natural Resources (DNR). Now the city can take the next step in the process by using that funding to make improvements at the park.

"Even though we've got approval, we've got a lot of work to do so we appreciate everything that's been done," said Davidson.

The grant requires a 50% match by the town, meaning the town will contribute $287,206 to match the $287,206 pledged by the National Park Service. Server said the town will do the work and submit invoices to the National Park Service for reimbursement of its portion.

With the grant awarded, Server said the town can "start moving forward and start incurring costs towards the projects we have identified for the park." Bids will be sought for the projects and plans toward construction can begin.

Eight projects were identified in the proposal. He said those projects must now be prioritized, particularly considering that costs have increased since the town initially developed its grant proposal.

Server said three projects are already prioritized — lighting for the baseball/softball fields and tennis court at $76,000, new storage/officials building on Fields 1 and 2 that include restrooms at $83,160, and tennis court refurbishment at $80,682. He said bid packages will be put together to "get some momentum from those three projects and see how much money we have left for the remainder of the projects."

The original plan for the tennis courts was to resurface them but the park committee has since determined that a more substantial response is needed. "Instead of resurface we want to rebuild them," Server said. "We all feel a resurface is not going to give us what we need long term, and amount of use they get" by students and adults. A total rebuild, Server said, is expected to increase the cost for the tennis courts.

With the potential of estimated project costs changing, Server said approval will be needed by DNR.

A portion of the grant also will go towards engineering costs with Midwestern Engineers Inc. in the range of approximately $56,750.

Other projects on the list are building a restroom/storage building for the amphitheater at $88,480, construction of a half-mile 8-foot-wide trail at $48,840, trail lighting at $112,000 and refurbishing an existing equipment storage building/garage at $28,500.

IN OTHER BUSINESS:

- Davidson said $7,200 was raised for the parks department through the inaugural Hanover Horsepower Car Show and Music that was held during the first weekend of August. He said plans are underway for the second annual Hanover Horsepower event next year. "We're very pleased with the first effort," he said.
- Davidson said improvements are coming together for Rainbow Park. "It doesn't look anything like it did two years ago when I first started my job" as parks director. "There's still a few things to do" but all the playground equipment is there, the basketball goal is up and the shelter house has been painted.
- Signups are now being taken for the Hanover youth basketball program for kindergarten through sixth grade. Davidson said 70 girls signed up last year, and he's anticipating that number will increase. Entry fee is $30 with application deadline Nov. 4.
- Party in the Park is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 15, at 11 a.m. with free food, face painting, games and inflatables. From 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. will be Spooktacular for kids with candy hand-outs. There will be a costume contest at 6:30 and a movie at 7:30 p.m.
- Plans are underway for the second Tinsel Twinkle Trail and Holly Jolly Santa celebration Saturday, Dec. 10. Event coordinator Megan Varble said lights and displays will be expanded, along with a new activity — the candy cane hunt. The official event to turn on the trail lights will be Friday, Nov. 25.
- Davidson said the Hanover Christmas craft show will be Saturday, Dec. 3, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with booths at the Southwestern Elementary cafeteria with possible expansion into the Hanover Community Center. Davidson said there are already 10 booths reserved.

COUNCIL

estimates will be solid ... typically on the first and second readings a number is not even assigned until it is adopted."

Councilman Patrick Thevenow said he had issues with moving forward with the ordinance with numbers based on estimates. Since the notice to taxpayers comes in the form of an ordinance, he questioned how easily those numbers could be later changed and whether that would require an amendment.

Joe Jenner, attorney for the city, said he would research the matter to see if changes can be made and what that process would involve and report back to the council.

Mayor Bob Courtney said the goal is to have a "more refined" budget process — that was the point of hiring Reedy Financial this summer to assist with budget process and as time goes on that should be the result — but the process is somewhat misleading now with the city required to adopt the notice to taxpayers by ordinance while some of the data is not yet known.

Trimnell said Reedy Financial came to the city's budget process late this year so the budget workshop was held later than with most municipalities the consultants serve. "Typically the council workshop would be earlier — typically in July — but the timing of introducing us to the process was later," Trimnell said, later adding "hopefully moving forward we can be more transparent."

Thevenow asked if delaying adoption of the ordinance by a week — until the council's special meeting on Wednesday — would allow the city enough time to make budget deadlines and Trimnell said enough time remains to do that.

"I think that's a good recommendation because we've already got the special meeting called for next week," Courtney added.

Councilman Jim Bartlett agreed, adding "at this stage of the game we don't know what the numbers are."

Considering that the budget goes hand-in-hand with funding compensation for elected officials and salaries of appointed officers and employees, the council also voted unanimously to table both of those ordinances until the special meeting.

In other business, the council also heard the second reading of an ordinance to amend the Planning Preservation & Design Schedule of Fees.

Thevenow, who opposed a similar ordinance that was rejected by council a few weeks ago, said the new ordinance is "almost identical" to the other ordinance and "my exceptions are almost the same" in that the fee increases are too high and he opposes any fee for an application going before the Historic District Board of Review. He proposed a motion eliminating some of the fees that died for lack of a second.

Thevenow said creating additional costs for making improvements in the historic district might lead to property owners trying to circumvent the regulation process and do work without filing appropriate applications and reviewing plans with experts on the Historic District Board of Review and city staff.

"It's best to encourage people to utilize that process and to want to go before the historic board to receive input rather than doing things on their own and adding a fee to this just doesn't help the process," Thevenow said.

Nicole Schell, the city's director of planning, said the proposed fee increase is from $15 to $25 to help cover the city's legal costs for advertising plus $17 for the application.

Council member Lucy Dattilo disagreed with Thevenow and noted a $17 application fee is not likely to cause anyone to circumvent the process and the value of consultation with the city's staff and the board is worth far more than the fee to be assessed.

Mayor Bob Courtney said the fees essentially cover legal fees and some of the cost increases from handling more applications by staff rather than sending all applications through the board. He said about 50% of the applications are handled by staff review and that helps property owners expedite their projects and benefit from staff expertise and resources. He said the city has "greatly increased staffing" and there is "no shortage of applications" thanks to incentives like the PACE grant program and targeted efforts to revitalize historic neighborhoods. "If we're to continue to provide professional staffing we need to fund that with fees," the mayor said.

Jan Vetrhus, a historic preservationist and member of Cornerstone, said the city should be trying to "encourage people to do the right thing" in terms of preservation by complying to regulations and the application process. "It is not appropriate to charge people for doing the right thing."

The ordinance could see a third reading and a vote on adoption Wednesday or at the council's meeting on Oct. 18.

The Carroll County girls soccer team became 31st District champions for the first time with a 3-1 victory over Gallatin County on Monday night.

Carroll County girls soccer team won its first district championship ever 3-1 over Gallatin County on Monday night.

Chloe Young had a goal and an assist for the Lady Panthers and Ainara Rodriuez and Lili Short each added a goal while Denisse Cotera had an assist. Goalkeeper Laila Miller allowed one goal and posted seven saves.

This has been a season of firsts for the Lady Panthers (13-8-1) as they have posted their first winning season in the girls soccer program's 13 years. The team has been on the cusp the previous two seasons, going 5-6 in the 2020 regular season before finishing 5-7. They were 9-11 in the 2021 regular season before finishing 9-13. They won their first district game in program history last season and also played in their first 8th Region tournament game.

According to the banners hanging in the high school gym, the girls soccer team was the last sports to claim a 31st District championship.

Young was named MVP of the 31st District tournament. Joining her on the all-tournament team were seniors Reagan Matthews and Cotera and freshman Brinley Couch.

To reach Monday's championship game Carroll had defeated Owen County 10-0 on Saturday.

Young scored four goals — which coach Josh Noble called a "Texas hat trick" — while Cotera scored her own hat trick with three goals and added an assist. Skyler Harmon, Reagan Miller and Rodriguez had a goal each while Harmon and Matthews added assists.

Carroll dominated the match with the game-ending goal scored with 24:16 on the clock to invoke the mercy rule.

Southwestern slips past Milan 2-1 in double-overtime

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

OSGOOD — Salvador Hernandez-Perez launched a rocket from 40 yards out with just under three minutes left in the second overtime to lift Class A No. 12 Southwestern to a 2-1 win over Milan in the boys soccer sectional opener at Jac-Cen-Del on Monday.

Hernandez-Perez's shot couldn't have been better placed. The senior got the ball in the middle of the field, and with a clean line of sight, decided to take his shot. The high-arching attempt wasn't too high, but came in high enough that Milan goalie Gabriel Rigdon was only able to get his fingers on the ball before it crashed into the net.

The goal sent the Rebels into a frenzy. They then held off a late charge by the Indians to pick up the crucial win.

While Southwestern coach Seth Shields wasn't exactly thrilled to go into overtime, he was happy to get the win and advance to the semifinals.

"I'm just happy with the way our team fought to the end and found a way to battle back," Shields said. "We didn't sub too much so I know that they were fighting fatigue, but we stayed in it. That's how you know good teams advance."

Milan (3-10-3) came into the match with just three wins but a habit of making life miserable for opposing teams. Just last week, the Indians held Southwestern scoreless in a 0-0 draw that ruined the Rebels' Ohio River Valley Conference

Madison opens title defense with ease

BY THE COURIER STAFF

It took Madison nearly 20 minutes to find the net, but once the Cubs offense started rolling they couldn't be stopped while opening defense of their sectional title with a 6-0 rout of Rushville in the Class 2A Boys Soccer Sectional at Batesville on Monday.

Madison was expected to roll over the Lions (3-13-1) easily but they were stuck in a scoreless tie until the 17th minute when Harrison Hall converted a penalty kick to give the Cubs what proved to be the only goal they would need.

Madison spent the next 60 minutes relentlessly attacking the Rushville goal. Ian Eiriksson scored the first of his two goals in the 22nd minute off an assist from Sonny Koren and Ramon Alvarado Paz sent Madison into halftime leading 3-0 after scoring on a terrific individual play around the net in the 28th minute.

Eiriksson struck again, off an Alvarado Paz assist, in the 47th minute to push the margin to 4-0 and Collin Hite scored on a long ball in the 61st minute. Jack Heckler then wrapped up the scoring with a goal in the 70th minute off a Hall assist for the final margin.

Madison (10-3-4) outshot Rushville 18-5 on the night, including 11-2 on goal. Keeper Graham Klein had five saves, including two on back-to-back corner kick chances early in the game that kept the Lions off the board.

In other opening round games at the Batesville Sectional, Greensburg whipped Franklin County 8-0 while South Dearborn knocked off Batesville 3-1. Batesville and South Dearborn then squared off in the second

Todd header breaks scoreless match for No. 5 Switzerland

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Switzerland County got all it wanted and more, but the Pacers held on for a 1-0 win over Jac-Cen-Del in the opening round of the Class A Sectional at Jac-Cen-Del on Tuesday.

The Pacers, undefeated and ranked fifth in Class A, found themselves in a scoreless tie at halftime after Jac-Cen-Del's defense successfully thwarted every Switzerland attempt over the first 40 minutes.

The Pacers finally got on the board in the opening minutes of the second half when Cooper Todd put the ball in the net on a header to give Switzerland a 1-0 lead. The goal was Todd's 31st of the season.

From there, Switzerland's defense clamped down and kept the Eagles at bay.

The clean sheet was the Pacers' 11th in 17 matches this season.

Switzerland, now a perfect 17-0 on the season, faced South Ripley (4-12-1) in the sectional semifinals on Wednesday. South Ripley had posted a 2-1 win over Rising Sun in the other first-round game on Tuesday.

On Monday, No. 12 Southwestern survived Milan 2-1 in the opening round and the Rebels (11-4-2) will take on No. 19 Shawe (12-3-2) in the other semifinal on Wednesday. Those two split two meetings this season.

The championship game will be on Saturday at 6 p.m.

No. 9 Pacers blast Milan in 7-0 rout

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Switzerland County wasted little time in dispatching Milan, whipping the Indians 7-0 in the opening round of the Class A Girls Soccer Sectional at Milan on Tuesday.

The Pacers, undefeated and ranked ninth in Class A, scored four goals in the first half and three more in the second to roll to the easy win.

Switzerland (14-0-2) dominated the action from the start but it wasn't until the 17th minute that the Pacers broke through, getting a goal from junior Halle Archer, who dribbled straight through the Milan defense and beat the goalie one-on-one just a few feet from the goal-line for a 1-0 lead. Archer created the Pacers' second goal a minute later, when she broke down the defense and passed to Kenzie Taylor, who slammed the ball into the net. Archer then scored on a hard shot from 25 yards out in the 23rd minute, then picked up her hat trick off a direct kick from just outside the box in the 26th minute for a 4-0 halftime lead.

Courtney Higgins scored Switzerland's fifth goal off an assist from freshman Emma Parsons. Parsons then scored two goals of her own for the final margin.

Switzerland, which won its first-ever sectional title a year ago, will square off against 10th-ranked Oldenburg Academy (11-3-1) in the semifinals today in what should be the de facto championship match. The two rivals, who have met in the sectional finals in four of the last five years, battled to a 1-1 tie on Sept. 15 — one of two matches the Pacers have failed to win this season with the other a scoreless tie with New Albany last week.

South Ripley (2-10-1) and Rising Sun (7-7-1) will meet in the other semifinal on Wednesday. The championship will be on Saturday at 2 p.m.

REBELS FALL TO TRINITY

Southwestern girls soccer saw its season end with a 7-0 loss to host Trinity Lutheran in the Class A Sectional at Trinity on Tuesday.

The injury-ravaged Rebels, who were playing without leading scorer Kearsty Cizek or most of their core defense, battled the Cougars to a 1-0 deficit in the first half.

But Trinity took control with two goals early in the second half and Southwestern coach Nancy Totten then switched around her lineup to close out the game.

"The season is not what we hoped for record-wise, but we are finishing as a family and I am grateful for this season," Totten said.

Southwestern ends the season with a 2-12-1 record.

"We finally woke up about three minutes into the second half and put the game away," Noble said. "In the first half we were choosing the wrong shot and going straight into pressure and once we fixed that, the game was over. We had a good stat line with five players scoring."

Owen County goalkeeper Isabella Loschiave allowed 10 goals but was also credited with 16 saves in the match. She was named to the all-district team for Owen County.

With the win on Monday night Carroll County will host a first round match in the regional against a runner-up from one of the other districts.

Monday's sectional contest was also scoreless — for the first 55 minutes — before Mizael Hernandez-Perez got the Rebels on the board with a goal to give Southwestern a 1-0 advantage.

But any hopes at an easy win were dashed when Milan scored off a corner kick six minutes later to tie the score 1-1.

That's where the game stood through the end of regulation and the first overtime before Salvador Hernadez-Perez fired in the game-winner.

Southwestern had plenty of chances to end the match earlier, but simply couldn't find the right combination to click.

"Milan is on the cusp of being a really good team. And their defense played a pretty good game against us," Shields said."We had to find strategic ways to try to advance the ball and I think we did a pretty good job advancing the ball. We we're just kind of missing the mark a little bit there."

Southwestern finished the game with 24 shots, including 11 on goal, while keeper Will Stockdale needed just four saves while playing all 94 minutes.

Southwestern, now 11-4-2 on the season, advanced to the semifinals on Wednesday where it faced off against old rival Shawe, ranked No. 19 in Class A and 12-3-2 in the regular season.

The Rebels and Hilltoppers split their two matches this season and Shields knows the game will be a battle.

"It's just one of the things where we just got to play tough, play as a team, play our game and I think our chances are really good," Shields said. "They're going to play hard and we just got to match that or be even better."

In other opening round games on Tuesday, No. 5 and unbeaten Switzerland County (17-0) survived a challenge from Jac-Cen-Del winning 1-0 while South Ripley (4-12-1) defeated Rising Sun 2-1. Switzerland and South Ripley played in the second semifinal on Wednesday evening.

Introverted person worried about friendships

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I have never had a ton of friends. As something of an introvert, I value quality over quantity.

I have never had a tight "group" of girlfriends — just individuals, with some overlap with people who know each other.

As we've gotten older, and especially during and since the pandemic, I don't see or speak to my friends as frequently as I used to.

Some have gotten busier with work and hobbies, and some are still reluctant to resume pre-Covid activities.

All of my friends seem to have friends they are closer to than they are to me, so they don't seem to "need" me as much as I need them.

I have tried meeting new people at activities I participate in, but it's hard to get past the friendly acquaintance stage.

We are all in our 50's, so I feel I should be past this. How do I make new, genuine, friends at this age and/or strengthen the friendships I have?

— J

Dear J: It would help if you could recognize that longstanding, deep and intimate friendships are a fairly rare treasure.

Even people you might believe are social butterflies likely have only one or two people they feel truly intimately connected to.

My first suggestion is that you do what you can to improve the connection with the friends you currently have. This would involve you being more actively in touch.

These "check-ins" are a reminder to others that you are here, and that you are interested in them.

Also, while you are making these personal efforts, do everything you can to stay busy. "Staying busy" sometimes seems like a ride on an empty hamster wheel, but those glancing connections with others can yield very satisfying moments, and an important sense of proportion and perspective.

Troubled son keeps coming back for more

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: My son has been in trouble with the law for the majority of his life. I have never turned my back on him and at one point even paid an attorney $20,000 to keep him from spending his life in jail.

This was a one-shot deal, and I told him that at the time.

About a month ago, he reached out to me to pay for his latest mess. I refused, telling him I was done helping him financially and he needed to solve it himself.

He has a great job that pays well.

His response was quick and vicious. I continue to be hurt and stunned by his remarks.

He ended the conversation by telling me not to show up at a planned family function, and then he hung up on me.

We haven't spoken since.

I am so disappointed in him; primarily that he is still breaking the law and secondly for being an ungrateful brat.

I am tempted to remove him from my will and just move on — but this is my child.

I don't know what to do.

Any suggestions?

— Sad Mom

Dear Sad: Your son does not seem to have adequate control over his own life — do not let him control yours.

You saved his bacon once; now it's his turn to take full responsibility for consequences flowing from his own choices.

If removing him from your will helps you to feel in control of your role in his life, then — do that.

He will always be your son. You don't need to like him, but I hope you will be able to continue to love him — even from a distance.

Unless a family function is being held at your son's home, then he doesn't get to tell you to stay away. Otherwise, you should go wherever you want to go, regardless of the relationship.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Hold off on making decisions that can wait for another day. You may be too eager to please someone who may change their mind again. A minor rift between you and a loved one may put undue strain on your relationship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Cash may seem to come and go faster than you can earn it. You should have a chance to save money later. Keeping your word to a coworker or fulfilling a business agreement may be more important than you realize.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Good communication with your social group can help you steer clear of someone's hidden resistance. Prevent disagreements by not letting anyone push your buttons. Clear away obstacles rather than going around them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Take your time. You may be anxious to get started on a new project or make a change, but it is best to wait for better conditions. A partner or loved one may need your help to achieve their lofty ambitions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — The more you learn, the more you can earn. Study how other people in your field make money to boost your earning capacity. Make wise decisions when surrounded by familiar faces or within the comfort of your own home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Spur-of-the-moment spending sprees can destroy your budget or bank account. A partner or loved one could encourage you on when you should just say "no." Concentrate on an engrossing creative project or idea and curtail expenses.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — The path to true love is not always smooth but eventually you can arrive at a less challenging section of the trail. If someone doesn't live up to your expectations, try changing your expectations, not the other person.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Don't pull down the blinds when a window of opportunity opens. Your social contacts could put you in a good position to receive recognition on the job or at your workplace. Entertain new opportunities wholeheartedly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Friends may invite you along for the ride. Some of your social adventures could be expensive, but improving your mind and furthering your education are some of the best things in life and may be more affordable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Uphold your reputation. Hold your course and continue to do what you do best even when someone backs down from a promise or has a change of heart. Your drive and initiative overcome obstacles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Do the right thing the right way the very first time. A loved one might need extra assurances that you are on the same wavelength. You must always fulfill your promises to maintain high levels of trust and respect.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Keep a tight grip on your money and think twice before indulging in an extravagance. Something new might only bring joy for few hours or days. If you are feeling burned out, get plenty of extra rest.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Being straightforward can enhance your public image. Something brand new may be fascinating and attractive but could have an addictive quality. You might incur added expenses and waste time on nonessentials.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Romantic self-indulgence or attending social events may be at the top of your to-do list but you may go overboard. Gratitude will make you happy; a nagging feeling that you deserve more will spoil your peace of mind.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — There is a difference between fair-weather friends and the true-blue variety. You should only depend on someone with a good track record. Keep an eye on the fine print and avoid anything that sounds too good to be true.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Timing is likely off; be smart and sit out this dance. Put off key decisions and take a rain check if invited to a last-minute family outing. You may be tempted to take impulsive gambles with your money or your heart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Numbers and words can be manipulated. Hold off on making crucial financial decisions or making changes in your routines. Remain proud of your skills or creative efforts but don't risk starting something new.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Maintain good gossip-karma, don't say more than you should. This is one of the days when your ideas and plans could go haywire. Do yourself a favor and don't answer if a new love interest comes knocking on your door.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may expect a consistent level of commitment and faithfulness from your loved ones only to be disappointed at a crucial moment. A new relationship might not have enough glue to hold together once infatuation fades.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Give an inch to gain a mile. Bolster your prestige by demonstrating a willingness to cooperate and compromise. Be aware that loved ones and coworkers might display a tendency to be extravagant or offer insincere flattery.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) —. Maintain situational awareness. Although you can see far ahead, you must still watch out for stumbling blocks that can catch your feet and trip you up. An obsession with something can take a toll on your resources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Figure out something to look forward to. It is necessary to adhere to the rules and fulfill financial commitments. Since your resourcefulness and resolve to succeed is at a peak, you can find a way to overcome obstacles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Remain aware of an emerging situation. Your hard work can pay off eventually but watch out for the temptation to spend the money before you receive it. Going along with the crowd may be a beneficial strategy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Insist on the facts to get to the solution. Figure out the difference between a smoke screen and a boundary. Rash behavior and extravagant spending can put you at odds with a partner or family member.

Colts still awaiting word on Taylor's status against Broncos

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Indianapolis Colts running back Jonathan Taylor intends to use Thursday night's pregame warmups as a test to see if he can play against Denver despite an ankle injury.

The news was worse for three-time All Pro linebacker Shaquille Leonard. In addition to the concussion keeping him out this week, Leonard may miss even more time with a fractured nose.

It's just another frustrating week for the struggling Colts.

"I'm going to use as much time as I can in order to get treatment and get feeling as well as possible before trying to make any decisions, and I think that's critical on a short week," Taylor said Tuesday. "So just trying to push as much treatment as I can."

Last year's NFL rushing champ doesn't miss much time.

Until the Colts (1-2-1) held him out of offseason workouts this spring, Taylor couldn't remember the last time he missed a practice. Then last week, an injured toe limited his participation in practice.

But while at Wisconsin, he played in 41 straight games and logged more than 900 carries and 6,100 yards. And four weeks into his third season with the Colts, Taylor has missed only one game, when he deemed a close contact of someone who tested positive for COVID-19.

Otherwise, Taylor has been Mr. Reliable, and he hopes it stays that way.

"I definitely do plan to play," Taylor said. "But if you can't go, you can't go."

Losing Taylor would be another blow for the league's lowest-scoring offense (14.3 points), especially as it prepares to face one of the NFL's stingiest defenses.

The backup plan likely would mean giving Nyheim Hines more touches while elevating Colorado native and former Broncos Pro Bowler Phillip Lindsay to the active roster.

Lindsay has said he would welcome facing his old team not far from where he has a home.

Fortunately for Indy, though, it doesn't appear playing will exacerbate Taylor's injury.

"I don't think we're in that category," coach Frank Reich said. "From the discussions I've had with the doctors and trainers, that's not a concern at this point. He's not ready to go right now, but we'll see if he's ready to go Thursday night."

The bigger long-term concern might be Leonard.

After the fallout from Tua Tagovailoa's head injury last Thursday, Reich wasted no time announcing Monday that neither Leonard nor versatile defensive lineman Tyquan Lewis would play against the Broncos (2-2). Both are in the concussion protocol.

On Tuesday, Reich confirmed Leonard also fractured his nose.

"Yeah, pretty bad," Reich said, describing the injury. "We need to do some further testing on that. We have to wait for the swelling to go down to see if that's going to come into play."

Leonard's 540 tackles and 17 forced fumbles rank among the best in the league since his rookie season in 2018.

But he struggled with ankle pain most of those first four seasons, then finally had back surgery in June to alleviate the pain. The procedure forced him to miss all of training camp, the entire preseason and Indy's first three regular-season games before making his season debut Sunday.

It didn't last long. He was injured on a nasty collision with teammate Zaire Franklin late in the first half. Leonard stayed on the ground for several minutes before going straight into the locker room with assistance from the trainers.

"I love this guy. He's the heart and soul of who we are," Reich said. "I feel so bad for him. He worked so hard to get back, it means so much to him. The team's success means so much to him. I know he's frustrated, hopefully he can get back there fast."

The same could be said about Taylor.

"We have a plan for that," Reich said, "but we still hope he can play."

Grounded running game has Colts searching for solutions

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Colts coach Frank Reich continues to insist Indianapolis needs to be a run-first team.

His approach generally worked during his first four seasons. Now, though, everything seems to be out of sync.

New quarterback Matt Ryan is struggling with turnovers, a revamped offensive line has not met expectations, and a young, unproven group of receivers continues to battle inconsistency. Worst of all, Indy's strong ground game has hit a rut.

"If you go back and look at all our runs on first down, a lot of second-and-longs and some third-and-longs," Reich said Monday. "I feel very confident we're going to get the run game going. We have a good process, the way we scheme plays, the way we teach it, the players we have. We're making adjustments to players. You guys know how we say it, it takes all 11 in the run game."

So far, Indy (1-2-1) has been unable to overcome the mounting obstacles.

Jonathan Taylor, last year's NFL rushing champ, has one 100-yard game and scored once in the season's first month while averaging a meager 3.34 yards per carry over the past three weeks.

And after a toe injury limited his practice time last week, Taylor left Sunday's 24-17 loss to Tennessee with an ankle injury that could keep him out of Thursday's game at Denver (2-2). If he can't play, the Colts will likely split time between Nyheim Hines and former Bronco Phillip Lindsay.

But the more glaring issue has been the inability to find running lanes.

Yes, Indy opened this season with three new blockers after Pro Bowl tight end Jack Doyle retired, right guard Mark Glowinski left in free agency and left tackle Eric Fisher was not re-signed. The plan was to rotate tight ends, plug Matt Pryor into Fisher's old spot and use Danny Pinter as Glowinski's replacement. That plan changed Sunday when Will Fries took over for Pinter.

The results have been underwhelming. Indy ran 23 times for 38 yards against one of the league's lowest-ranked run defenses Sunday. Reich knows those numbers — and the overall ground game — must improve quickly for the Colts to achieve their goals.

"A lot of times in the run game, they have sometimes one more guy than you and a lot of times your players are out-leveraged," he said. "The bottom line is it's all of us, right? We've got to coach it better, we've got to scheme it better, we've got to play better, we've got to get better leverage, we've got to be more physical."

WHAT'S WORKING

Defense. Despite giving up another 100-yard rushing game to Derrick Henry, the Colts limited Tennessee to 52 plays, 243 total yards and pitched a second-half shutout. This group played well enough to win and perhaps the Colts would have prevailed if the Titans hadn't converted two turnovers into 14 points.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

Turnovers. Indy has gone from being one of the league's most opportunistic teams to one of the least efficient in turnover margin. A year ago, they shared the league lead at plus-14. This year, they're minus-6, near the bottom of the NFL.

STOCK UP

Colts tight ends. Over the past two weeks, Jelani Woods and Mo Alie-Cox have combined for four TD catches and Kylen Granson has produced some big plays, too. The combined total for this trio against Tennessee: 11 receptions, 180 yards, two TDs.

Reds avoid 100th loss with walk-off win over Cubs

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Spencer Steer doubled off Brandon Hughes in the ninth inning to score Stuart Fairchild and the Cincinnati Reds avoided their 100th loss, beating the Chicago Cubs 3-2 on Tuesday night.

The Reds (62-99) are trying to avoid the second 100-loss season in franchise history. They were 61-101 in 1982 while in the process of dismantling the dominant Big Red Machine clubs.

Chuckie Robinson tied it for Cincinnati in the seventh with a two-run homer off Keegan Thompson. Alexis Diaz (7-3) was the winner.

Luis Cessa held the Cubs hitless until Contreras led off the fourth with his 22nd home run of the season, two shy of his career high set in in 2019. Cessa left during the sixth inning with a knee injury.

Jonathan India left after fouling a ball off his left leg in the third. Matt Reynolds replaced him at 2B.

Judge belts record 62nd HR; $2M offered for ball

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ARLINGTON, Texas — Yankees slugger Aaron Judge led off the nightcap with his American League-record 62nd home run and Gerrit Cole set the franchise single-season strikeouts record even as New York lost 3-2 to the Texas Rangers on Tuesday night for a doubleheader split.

Judge drove the third pitch of second game, a 1-1 slider from Rangers opener Jesus Tinoco, into the first row of seats in left field to end his long, tiring chase to break Roger Maris' AL mark that had stood since 1961.

"It's part of the game. I challenged him and he just hit the home run," Tinoco said through a translator.

"Obviously it's against us, so we're not ecstatic about it," Rangers interim manager Tony Beasley said. "But when you have time to look back, it's a huge moment in baseball and what he's accomplished this year is something amazing. You have to respect that."

It was the 55th game in a row Judge had played since Aug. 5, and the only homer he had hit in the previous 13 games was No. 61 last Wednesday in Toronto. He went 1 for 5 with a single and scored the decisive run in the opener Tuesday.

Manager Aaron Boone indicated that Judge earned a day off in the regular-season finale Wednesday, and Boone followed through on that by leaving Judge out of the lineup.

After Judge batted again in the second inning following his record homer, and struck swinging against Kolby Allard, Boone removed him from the nightcap after he had already gone to right field in the bottom of the frame.

Cole (13-8) struck out nine, raising his major league-best total to 257. The right-hander had entered the game tied with the 248 strikeouts Ron Guidry had in 1978, when he was the AL Cy Young Award winner after going 25-3 with a 1.74 ERA. Cole passed Guidry when he struck out Rangers No. 2 batter Nathaniel Lowe in the first inning.

"Even just to tie the record, and let alone break it, it's a bit surreal," Cole said. "And obviously on a night like tonight, it's just kind of like, whoa, I mean, what a lot of history going on. Just a wonderful experience to share it with my teammates."

FAN WHO CAUGHT AARON JUDGE'S 62ND HR OFFERED $2M FOR BALL

Meanwhile, the owner of a sports memorabilia auction house says he has offered $2 million to the fan who caught the record home run ball.

JP Cohen, president of Memory Lane Inc. in Tustin, California, told The Associated Press on Wednesday that he has texted and emailed Cory Youmans, the man who caught Judge's milestone shot at Globe Life Field in Arlington. Cohen says Youmans has not yet replied.

"I feel the offer is way above fair, if he is inclined to sell it," Cohen said in a telephone interview with the AP on Wednesday.

Louisville's Cunningham undergoing concussion protocol

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Louisville coach Scott Satterfield says quarterback Malik Cunningham's status is being evaluated daily for concussion-like symptoms after he was injured Saturday's loss at Boston College.

The fifth-year senior ran for three touchdowns and threw for another before finishing the game, a 34-33 defeat, on the sideline. He was removed for one play in the third quarter after taking a hit to the head from BC defensive back Jaylen Blackwell, who was penalized for targeting. Cunningham played two more series before being replaced by Brock Domann.

Satterfield said Tuesday that Cunningham told team doctors that he "felt a little different" after taking another hit later and was pulled from the game.

"His status now is day to day and it'll be determined by our doctors what they allow him to do," Satterfield said during his weekly news conference, which came ahead of Saturday's ACC game at Virginia. "If he's able to go, then obviously he'll go. But if they say he's not ready, then he won't go."

Cunningham was injured two days after Miami Dolphins quarterback Tua Tagovailoa suffered a concussion, laying on the turf with his hands and fingers frozen upward after being slammed backward to the turf in a game against the Cincinnati Bengals. Tagovailoa had experienced concussion-like symptoms after a hit four days earlier against the Buffalo Bills but was cleared to return, raising questions about the NFL's handling of such injuries.

Satterfield said Cunningham told him he felt fine after sitting out following the first hit. Team doctors told him that a second hard tackle left his quarterback dizzy and that he probably sustained concussion-like symptoms.

The coach indicated that he would heed medical advice on Cunningham's availability.

"Our doctors do a fabulous job," Satterfield said. "Anytime there's any kind of injury, the doctors are going to give the go-ahead to play or not play. It's not any coach's or any training staff (decision) when it comes to that, those type of injuries."

Cunningham recently became the sixth quarterback in NCAA history to exceed 9,000 yards passing and 3,000 rushing in a career.
